No recommendations will be made but it is expected he will reiterate the attitude of the administration to indicate that only on the basis previously outlined will negotiations with Huerta be continued.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—Believing the Mexican situation acute, Senator Works returned today to Washington. He came home ten days ago and said he probably would stay. He favors the president's policy.

FATHER ORDERED TO PAY A SON DOLLAR A DAY

JUDGE AVERILL ASSUMES GUARDIANSHIP OF ALLEGED INCORRIGIBLE.

The first case under the delinquent child law in Nye county was disposed of last night by Judge Averill in the district court. The suit was instituted by Mrs. Mary C. Johnson, owner of the Hasbrouck house, an amicus curiae for Gerald Byrnes, a minor, against Ed Byrnes, his father who is employed at the Belmont as carpenter.

The suit was to compel defendant to support the boy who was alleged to be incorrigible and not amenable to discipline. The court ordered the father to pay the sum of one dollar a day until such time as the boy could find work and the judge appointed himself guardian and said he would try to secure work and establish to his own satisfaction the truth of the assertion that Gerald was too indolent to do anything to relieve his parent from the burden of support.

Thomas V. Chambers appeared for the petitioner and District Attorney Sanders represented the elder Byrnes.

HACKER ACCUSED OF FRAUD IN DISPOSING OF PROPERTY

MISDEMEANOR CHARGED TO ATTORNEY WHO LOST BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT.

Although William L. Hacker was sued for $100,000 by Miss Anna MacDonald for breach of promise, he was ordered to pay a judgment of $6000 and subsequently appeared in court and showed that he had no property, having transferred everything in anticipation of such a contingency, the case is not yet concluded, an aftermath developing yesterday in the Reno justice court. Hacker was arrested yesterday on a charge of having fraudulently transferred a house and lot in Missouri worth $3000 to his sister, Miss Glenda Hacker. Miss MacDonald alleges that the house was transferred early in March about two weeks after her suit for damages was filed.

Hacker appeared before Justice Davis and promptly filed a demurrer, asserting that the facts alleged in the complaint do not constitute a public offense and that the defendant is unable to ascertain from the complaint what offense is charged, hence can not make answer.

A misdemeanor is charged in the warrant of arrest. The maximum fine is $1000 but there is apparently a misprint in the statute where it reads that one found guilty of the offense may be fined or sent to jail for not less than six months. In all other places the statute says "not more than six months."

VALUE OF GRUBSTAKE GRANTED WELL KNOWN SALT LAKE MAN AT BOTTOM OF LITIGATION

(Special to the Bonanza.)

CARSON CITY, Aug. 22.—Judge Talbot, in the supreme court, today handed down an opinion in the case of Harry B. Lind, appellant, versus James R. Davis and W. H. Webber and the Nevada Hills Mining company reversing the district court.

The case was tried in the seventh judicial district at Goldfield, with Judge Theron Stevens presiding. A verdict was rendered against Lind. The case then was appealed to the supreme court, which reversed the decision of the lower court. The case has been pending in the highest court for three years.

Lind sued Davis and Webber for a sixth interest in the proceeds of the Nevada Hills Mining company on the ground that he had grubstaked Webber, who afterward became associated with Davis, and had never received any return on his investment. The decision is said to entitle Lind to one-sixth interest. Lind was represented by former Judge James P. O'Brien, now of San Francisco.

Webber is one of the best known operators in the northern country, having made a fortune out of his successful promotions at Fairview, Wonder and in Humboldt county which he has invested in Denver real estate. The Nevada Hills company is not directly affected by the litigation as the contest is over the holdings of individual stockholders whose interests are subject to the order of the court.

Under the law of this state the plaintiff is entitled to one-sixth interest in the entire holdings at the highest market price, or a total of $760,000.

James R. Davis, president of the Round Mountain Mining company, who is interested in this suit, had not received any advice up to this afternoon but he surmised that the opinion of the supreme court simply reversed the decision of the lower court and remanded the case back for trial.

Old Landmark of Tonopah the Forum of the Desert Returns to Original Use

The Butler building has passed from its regnant station in the history of Tonopah and reverted to the uses for which it was first designed, but never applied. The old place at the corner of Main and Everett streets has dwindled with the growth of the camp. Instead of keeping pace with the progress and improvement the two story frame that at one time was the proud boast of every loyal citizen has been allowed to deteriorate or, perhaps, stand still. Where others have gone forward the Butler remained stationary, unpainted and neglected. As a landmark it stands today mute testimony of the fact that the man who built it was actuated by the noblest impulse of human brotherhood.

Built by Butler.

Jim Butler was the builder. He caused the two story frame structure to be erected for the convenience of J. P. Brinkley who had helped him and who was to be repaid in a way that would not suggest an intrusive friendship. The house was put up for a hotel but never was occupied as such.

A glance into the hallway from the entrance on Main street will disclose the presence of a stairway boarded over at the level of the second floor. Reposing near the top of the stairway is a magnificent gas drop light which was intended to light the guests to their rooms and embellish the entrance. There was no electric light in those days and Tonopah was regarded with envy as being the second gas lighted town in the state. Then the place boasted of a hot air furnace, the first one of the kind known on the desert, and the only central heating plant outside of Reno. As grimly remarked by one of the old tenants the furnace was not the only element of hot air in the building for the occupants were notorious dispensers of what is known as the Mexican product—throwing the bull, and there are abundant vowels and consonants whispering there yet like the echoes of a haunted house.

Back to First Principles.
Yesterday a lease was signed by which the Butler building becomes a lodging house and it is likely to remain so to the end of its days. This building has always ranked as one of the best constructed houses in the state. Money was not spared to get results. The orders of Jim Butler were to get the lumber and all appurtenances of the best the market afforded as he proposed to give the camp that made him famous the best hostelry in the state. But his plans did not succeed. Cheap shacks and minor lodgings suited the early comers better than the sumptuous ness of the Butler and after the interior was arranged it was found that more profit could be realized from renting for offices than any other purpose. There was plenty of cheap lodgings and there were a few fairly good hotels, but there was not an office building in the camp. Then there was a demand for lodge rooms and what was more natural than that the designer should be persuaded to convert the upper floor into a spacious hall for holding entertainments and for the comfort of lodge members. Thus it came to pass that the lower floor was cut up into offices, the stairway was boarded up and an outside entrance to the second floor added on the rear. The first lodge to occupy the hall was Belmont lodge, I. O. O. F., which had moved over from the former county seat and established itself where most of the membership existed in Tonopah. Then came the Masons, Eagles, and Knights of Pythias. Here the Knights of Columbus instituted their first council with the aid of their brother knights from Goldfield and Ogden. Every labor union, except the Western Federation of Miners, held their sessions in this building but the glory of the place rested on the ground floor where there was congregated one of the most notable groups of attorneys and financiers that ever graced a Nevada office building.

Cradle of Mining.
As the cradle of mining organizations the Butler building saw the Montana, Midway, West End, Montgomery Shoshone brought into the world and in some way or another every mining company in the district except the Tonopah Mining company and the Belmont had their inception there. While upstairs echoed with songs and revelry and mystic rites, when smokers and jollifications were conducted without stint, the ground floor was the scene of profound deliberations involving millions, for the highbrows of the camp held their councils and burned the midnight oil in abundance. It was here that R. L. Johns, Gus Elsen, Harry Bragdon, Jack Salisbury and Shorty Kendall drew up the articles of the Combination Mining Menaced by Fire.

Notwithstanding the variety of tenants and the great risks of fire the Butler never suffered the loss of a dollar, although at one time it was feared the place was doomed. This was before the Elks established their home at the present site. A fire broke out in the Booker building and the space of an open lot did not offer much protection from the blaze which leaped across the chasm and licked at the wooden side of the Butler. All hands rushed in and began emptying the building. Records and books from the lawyers' offices were dragged into the street while Jack Hennessy and a bunch of other good fellows seized blankets and stationed themselves at the west exposure and did such good service that the building was not even scorched. After the excitement had abated the boys carried all the libraries and furniture back where they belonged.

Money Was Not Spared.

The building was erected by Wona-cott & Hall, contractors in 1902 at an estimated cost of $25,000. This was in the good old freighting days when lumber was worth its weight in gold and every extra embellishment had to be paid for at the top of the market. Nevertheless the building proved a good investment and retained its prestige until modern buildings of fire proof construction began edging their way into camp. Then the secret societies thrived to such an extent that they established their own homes. The Knights of Pythias went up on Brougher avenue, the Knights of Columbus bought the Bartlett mansion, the Masons found quarters better adapted to their dignified rites, the Odd Fellows bought the old Bass property and took away the Eagles. Thus the old building, the former pride of Tonopah, like the House of Seven Gables, was left with one solitary tenant, the Honorable Patsy M. Bowler. Even this veteran, whose life is a tabloid history of the southern country, has to bow his head to fate and seek office room elsewhere. He could remain but the atmosphere of a lodging house is not compatible with the judicial temperament of the tenant, and he will move on.

A Stick of Dynamite for Mayor Gaynor

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—An Italian laborer is suspected of placing sticks of dynamite under a window of Mayor Gaynor's office in the city hall. A piece of cambric such as is a favorite with Italians wrapped the dynamite. The fuse had been lighted but went out before reaching the detonating cap. It is believed to have been placed early yesterday by a workman employed in the subway, a shaft from which opens near the hall.

TRYING ANOTHER COURSE

CAMINETTI WILL ADOPT TACTICS DIFFERENT FROM MAURY DIGGS.

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—"No matter what happens to me I won't deny any statement of Lola Norris regarding the Reno elopement. I have the greatest respect for Miss Norris and would rather go to jail for life than throw a shadow of doubt on the accuracy of her testimony."

This was the statement of Drew Caminetti who goes to trial for white slavery today. He denied that he would plead guilty and ask the court's mercy.

Marshal Woodworth, attorney for the defense, said today that Caminetti will take the stand and while his story will be different from that of Miss Norris he will not deny hers despite the pleadings of his family and lawyers.

NEVADA EAGLES GOES INTO GOOD SHIPPING ORE

HIGH GRADE SHIPPING PRODUCT IS EXPOSED NEAR TOWN OF GOLDFIELD.

On the property of the Nevada Eagle company, four miles west of the town of Goldfield, developments are in progress that have aroused the keenest interest of mining men and give promise of making another important producing mine for the Goldfield district. On the 250 foot level of the mine an ore body has been exposed that has been yielding assays up to 200 ounces of silver per ton, with a small quantity of gold, the ore being similar in appearance to some of the richer ores of the Tonopah district.

In the top of the workings at this depth a slip appeared and the narrow seam of ore that has widened to two feet in the breast of the drift. The vein matter is fully four feet in width and the quartz, which is highly mineralized and shows some ruby silver, is apparently all of excellent quality for its width of two feet or more. A winze has now been started to follow down the ore shoot and if the quality is maintained in this winze the 250 level will be extended to open up the ore at this depth.

Preparations are now being made to ship ore from this property as soon as loading bins can be made available at the railroad. A number of carloads of ore have been shipped from the Nevada Eagle mine during the past six or eight months and all returned good profit.—Goldfield Tribune.

MAY WITHDRAW BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS

HANFORD OPTION UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BEEN GRANTED UNDER SPECIAL PROVISION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—P to the granting to R. G. Hanford an option on the United Copper company through the shares of R. Smith, the directors of the United Copper company are unanimous in demanding that Hanford withdraw the bankruptcy filed by him against the Oaki millionaire. An official close to trustees admitted this morning it was practically agreed that Hanford should not be forced into the bankruptcy court.

If Hanford succeeds in interest English capital as he expects will be able to purchase a share in the United Properties company, the Oakland Traction company and the Realty Syndicate. It is believed that the entire Smith financial situation will be cleared. The trustees to whom he has given control of his affairs are also kinsmen of the outcome providing course, Hanford raises the money he hopes. It is understood that only reason why the bankruptcy proceedings cannot be immediately quashed is because a number of minor creditors have been drawn into the case and have joined themselves to the original plaintiffs were inspired by Hanford.
